Sugarcane Washroom Range

Predominantly sugarcane pulp (bagasse) is used to produce these paper products. Bagasse is the fibrous residue left over after the sugarcane has been crushed and the sugar extracted. The finished product is soft and has strong water absorbency, and more importantly: 100% biodegradable. Sugarcane bagasse products compare favourably with common "tree-made" paper. The product is all made from the residues of an annual agricultural crop by-product, helping to reduce the commercialisation of our forests.

- Sugarcane products are soft and have strong water absorbency. No added fragrance.
- Requires less bleaching chemicals than wood pulp.
- Using agriculture crops reduces deforestation.
